

The image shows the interior of a restaurant named 'Bistro Blackwood'. The room features a warm, modern aesthetic with light wood-paneled walls on the left and a dark blue accent wall on the right. The floor is made of polished wood in a herringbone pattern. Several tables are set with white tablecloths, glassware, and folded napkins. The tables are surrounded by yellow upholstered chairs with metal frames. Three large, white, dome-shaped pendant lights hang from the ceiling. On the white wall, there are three circular wreaths made of greenery and red berries. Large windows on the right side of the room are covered with blue curtains. The overall atmosphere is clean, bright, and inviting.

Bistro Blackwood is Jock Zonfrillo's lively bistro located in the east end of Adelaide's CBD, and is the sibling of Restaurant Orana which was recently named Australia's restaurant of the year by Gourmet Traveller magazine.

It's a place for everyone where we serve a seasonally evolving menu with daily specials drawing from the same indigenous ingredients and techniques that we bring to life at Orana. It's the same style, but more approachable and we love having families in so there's a great choice of kids meals available.

Bistro Blackwood is a project for the Orana team, a space for our chefs to be creative and use seasonal ingredients from our local organic farmers and suppliers, or what our forager has discovered that day.

Our menu includes bistro classics alongside a punchy local-leaning wine list with an emphasis on lo-fi producers. Guests wanting to splash out beyond the 40-bottle list can order off Restaurant Orana's 400-bottle spread, curated by our Sommelier.
